27th March 2013

Highlights

- Large strategic holding acquired adjacent to Corazon Mining Ltd's (ASX: CZN) Top Up Rise Project
- 3 tenement applications covering 1305 km² in the Gibson Desert region of Western Australia
- Top Up Rise is considered prospective for Olympic Dam/Prominent Hill style IOCG mineralisation
- Top Up Rise is one of the largest untested gravity anomalies in Australia, similar in size to the Olympic Dam geophysical anomaly

Rumble Resources Limited ("Rumble" or "Company") (ASX: RTR) is pleased to announce that it has acquired a large strategic holding adjacent to Corazon Mining Ltd's (ASX: CZN) Top Up Rise Project. The Leyland Project consists of three tenement applications covering a total area of 1305 km².

This region is prospective for large Iron Oxide Copper Gold systems. The Top Up Rise Project has a large untested gravity anomaly of +7mGals above background which is similar in size and more intense than the anomaly at Olympic Dam in South Australia.

Corazon recently announced that exploration is underway at its Top Up Rise Project, with a ground gravity survey underway, which will be followed-up with a maiden drilling program in April/May 2013.

Previous exploration in the area by BHP Billiton Limited (1996 to 1999) and more recently by Toro Energy Limited (ASX:TOE). Toro Energy completed rock chip sampling on an adjacent tenement, which returned significant Fe up to 56% along with rare earths up to 4% TRE and anomalous copper (639ppm) and uranium oxide (82ppm).
